

COUNTY'S WOMEN SHERIFF CORPS COMPLETE

Onondaga County has the first complete organization of women deputy sheriff's in the county, according to Sheriff Lewis E. Schriber, who enrolled them in office Tuesday afternoon and dined them at luncheon at the Hotel Syracuse.

The women will act as assistants to Mrs. Mary F. Tormey, chief women's deputy, and each will represent a town in the county. The new deputies posed especially for The Journal cameraman. Their names are as follows:

Bottom Row, Left to Right—Mrs. Margaret Downes, Child Welfare Board; Mrs. Elizabeth Egan, executive secretary women's division, Republican county committee; Mrs. Catherine Hanley, jail matron; Mrs. Mildred Adist, Baldwinsville; Mrs. Mary Tormey, chief women's deputy; Sheriff L. E. Schriber, Mrs. Schriber, Mrs. J. B. McIntyre, Manlius; Mrs. E. A. Gordon, Fabius.

Back Row—Mrs. Gertrude York, Spafford; Mrs. Florence Pease, Skaneateles; Mrs. Ruth I. Schell, Salina; Mrs. Berdina Garrett, Apulia; Mrs. Smith Parker, Tully; Mrs. Estella Denman, Clay; Mrs. Lina S. Failing, Van Buren; Mrs. Margaret Tindall, Geddes.

Women appointed in Pompey and Marcellus found that it would be impossible for them to serve and two others will be appointed to complete the list within a few days, the sheriff said.

Hat Is Known By Company It Keeps

Called out of town on official business, Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. Margaret M. Downes, county probation officer, not caring to wear her large hat, on the automobile trip, searched the collection of presumably discarded masculine hats in the sheriff's office, selected a brown one and departed. When she returned she found the following note on her desk:

"Mrs. Downes: When you are through using my hat, call me up, please, and I'll come after it. (Signed) Fred E. Dutcher, 114 White street."

Mr. Dutcher had been in the courtroom and was obliged to wear a discarded straw hat when he left the Court House.

ELOPEMENT IS FAILURE—BUT DAN CUPID SCORES AT LAST

Best match made in heaven
Edna Timerson, 15, Slender, Rosy-Cheeked Girl, Who Looks Even Younger, Becomes Bride of Harry Isham—Mother's Objection Withdrawn.

Cupid was nursing a black eye last week when probation officers thwarted the elopement plans of Edna Timerson, 15, of West Phoenix, and Harry Isham, 21, a lovesick farmhand working near Fulton, who is alleged to have encouraged his young sweetheart to flee from home when her mother insisted she was too young to marry.

But Cupid came back strong yesterday afternoon in Baldwinsville. Mrs. Mary Tormey and Mrs. Margaret Downes acted as first and second assistants when parental objections were withdrawn and the young girl became Mrs. Isham. The ceremony was performed by Charles H. Hall, justice of the peace.

Tears and threats of the young girl won her a husband where a bold elopement had failed and her mother had reported Isham had enticed her daughter away from home. Mrs. Tormey's aid was enlisted, and little Edna, a slender, rosy-cheeked girl who looked even less than 15, was found at the home of relatives of Isham in Oswego.

It had been planned beforehand that the girl was to remain in charge of Isham's relatives until pursuit had been abandoned, when they were to slip away and be married. Edna had prepared to "tell a fib" to conceal her real age.

Isham called on Mrs. Timerson and pleaded so persistently for her daughter's hand that the mother gave her consent, and accompanied Edna and the young man to the office of the justice of the peace. The two probation officers were summoned by telephone and were witnesses to the ceremony.

Edna kissed her mother goodbye, and walked away arm in arm with her husband to take the trolley for the farm where he is working.

"I don't want a honeymoon trip," she told Mrs. Tormey. "A wife ought to be thinking from her first day of ways of helping her husband make money, because the more both earn, the easier it is for them."
